STRATEGIC DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE PROJECT

FINDINGS & REPORT

Background and Process

Delegates and members of the Coalition of Black Trade Unionists gathered for the 40th annual convention. During this momentous occasion the leadership, membership, and partners embarked on an ambitious plan to reflect on the strengths and accomplishments of CBTU, discussed external factors influencing CBTU, identified growing opportunities for CBTU, and developed Strategic initiatives to move the organization forward. The following report stems from responses to group dialogue and small group discussions focused on those reflections and critical thinking to move CBTU forward towards another amazing 40 years.

Using the SOAR (Strengths, Opportunities, Aspirations, and Results) method participants generated a tremendous amount of information and ideas. They generally captured the spirit of the mission, purpose and vision of CBTU. This report will include the major findings, summary, and information from the SOAR. It will also present SMART (specific, measurable, achievable, realistic, and timely) goals and objectives for implementation at each level of CBTU for each of the strategic initiatives developed.

Summary of Findings

Strengths and Achievements

Participants identified the strengths and achievements of CBTU; subsequently the initiatives that follow fall in line with continuing and expanding the things CBTU does well, re-visioning its work, and enhancing CBTU's engagement beyond its current constituent force.

Opportunities

The large and small work groups spent time discussing the possibilities facing CBTU looking towards the future. The purpose of looking at opportunities is to help guide thinking and movement towards identifying strategic initiatives and goals for the future development of CBTU. The summary list of the categories and ideas from which CBTU can navigate and expand both its outreach and influence are listed here:

- 1. Focus on community involvement and faith based organizations
- 2. Mobilize for 2012 election and develop our own candidates
- 3. Branding CBTU Chapters and broaden membership
- 4. Keeping locked out/unemployed/striking members engaged in the struggle
- 5. Utilizing technology Facebook, twitter
- 6. Recruiting new and younger members with mentoring
- 7. Educating the public about unions
- 8. Using economic attacks to engage and activate

Trends

Trends and obstacles were also discussed in the small groups. This discussion helped to shape the realistic goal setting for the following strategic initiatives (aspirations). The purpose here was not to evaluate, qualify, or quantify the challenges faced by CBTU, but instead to acknowledge there are always challenges but instead of focusing attention there we instead focus on realistic approaches to meet our mission, goals, and objectives understanding CBTU will, like any other entity have to face obstacles and challenges boldly, rationally and realistically.

Strategic Initiatives (Aspirations)

Based on the existing strengths, achievements, and opportunities the members of CBTU addressed the task of realistically establishing initiatives that the membership could and would commit to implementing over the next year to move CBTU forward. These are established as blueprints or guidelines for chapters, regional units, and the international body to implement at various levels to achieve a larger, significant, and impactful CBTU. From all of the members who participated over two days the following strategic initiatives were identified. From these will follow goals and objectives for implementation between 2011-2012. Aspirations are:

Final Summary and Recommendations

Convened at the request of the President, William Lucy, after a yearlong process that included surveys, assessments, interviews, and discussions with Executive Board members, chapter and regional leaders the 2011 Strategic Initiatives process was developed to engage CBTU members at every level in the organization first to celebrate 40 years of CBTU successes and to begin the process of charting the future of the organization and its influence in the labor movement and allied communities.

Over two days the membership of CBTU discussed the and developed ideas, concepts, goals, and objectives to move CBTU forward into its next season of life. On Thursday, May 26, 2011 approximately 207 members participated in this process; and on Friday, May 27, 2011 approximately 401 members completed the process.

The energy and engagement of the membership was tremendous and far exceeded CBTU expectations, showing an ongoing love, commitment, and determination for and to CBTU by its members. These initiatives are designed to be implemented between May 2011 and May/June 2012 for evaluation and assessment at the next CBTU convention. The ongoing adjustment and adaptation of these initiatives should happen as often as necessary to keep CBTU moving forward meeting the challenges faced by the organization, the labor movement, and CBTU's allied and partner communities and organizations.

It is therefore the recommendation of the coordinators and facilitators of this project that CBTU, based on the magnitude of the engagement and participation of its membership, wholly adopt this report and agree to implement these initiatives, without haste, to continue moving the organization forward and maintaining significant engagement by its membership.

Facilitators for this process were:

Karen Alford, Willie Baker, Charlie Benn, Margie Brumfield, Zina Burton-Myrick, Selina Durio, Janice Gairey, Derek Grate, Monique Greene, Anthony Harmon, Charles Hines, Taz Hurst, Carla Insinga, Charles Johnson, LaToia Jones, Tyrek Lee, Alan Lubin, Terry Melvin, Fareed Michelen, Roxie Nelson, Vasper Phillips, Jim Price, Jim Reid, Dennis Serrette, Marcus Shepherd, Darrin Span, Linda Stelly, Roosevelt Stewart, Katherine Taylor, Jenissee Volpintesta, Paul Webster, Patricia Williams, & Fred Wright.
